

Stacking and packing

Babies and toddlers of this age are fascinated by things that fit into, or onto, other things. A box stacked with smaller boxes, tubes and flat pieces of cardboard is usually a good source of entertainment.

- Your toddler may just like to take everything out and put it back again, but you could also show him how to stack the smaller boxes into a tower and knock it down.

- The tubes can also be stood on their ends for knocking down, rolled along the floor or used as telescopes or megaphones.
